ALGER DEFENDS HIMSELF

HIS STATEMENT IN REPLY TO CRITICISM.

Analyses the Appointments of Atty Officers—Points Out the Immense Amount of Work Done.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—Secretary Alger has just issued a statement in reply to criticisms of the newspapers, and particularly in reply to an article principal parts of this statement are as appearing in the London Times. The follows:

"At the commencement of the war with Spain, and for several years prior to that time, the regular army consisted of only 25,000 men, with the minimum number of officers prescribed by law. The situation may be partially appreciated when it is remembered that within 60 days from the declaration of war the strength of the army was increased to 275,000, and everything for the equipment of this great force, including clothing, tents, transportation, medical supplies, camps and camp equipage, and all that pertains to equipping an army for service, had to be manufactured, transported and distributed for use."

"From the statement referred to the public might be led to believe that the volunteer army was officered by men selected through political influence with the Secretary of War, by special favor, and without regard to fitness for the duties they were to perform. As is well known, the volunteer force, with the exception of three regiments of engineers, three regiments of cavalry and ten regiments of immune infantry, was made up of regiments from the various states, the officers of which were all appointed exclusively by the governors of the respective states from which the regiments came, and any officer found unfit for service and discharged was replaced by another in the same manner. The President had no voice or control in the matter."

"The returns of the volunteer army show that in August, 1898, there were 297,244 enlisted men and 8,785 officers in those regiments. This, with the regular army recruited up to the war strength, made an aggregate force of about 275,000 officers and men. The volunteer officers appointed by the President number, all told, 1,932. Of this number 441 were taken from the regular army and 591 from civil life."

"For a little over a thousand appointments made by the President the number of applications was over 25,000. Of the number appointed there were, for instance, twenty-six Major-Generals, of whom nineteen were taken from the regular army and seven from civil life. Of those seven all but one were graduates of the West Point Military Academy and all had distinguished themselves in command during the Civil War."

"Of the Brigadier-Generals there were 102 appointed—sixty-six from the regular army and thirty-six from civil life. These from civil life had all served during the Civil War or on our Western frontier, and all had proven themselves competent to command."

"It has been stated and repeated many times that the Secretary of War made these appointments, when the truth is that very few were made upon his recommendation."

ROOT SECRETARY OF WAR.

Alger Steps Out and His Successor Steps In.

WASHINGTON, August 1.—Elihu Root took the oath of office as Secretary of War at 10:45 a. m. today. The ceremony occurred in the large office of the Secretary of War in the presence of Secretaries Gage and Hitchcock, Assistant Secretary McEljohn, a large number of army officers in uniform and other employees and officials. The oath was administered by Judge Cole of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia.

Secretary Alger arrived at the War Department at 10:40, accompanied by Mr. Root, for whom he had called in his carriage. General Alger left at 12:45 o'clock today for his home in Detroit. The last official act of Secretary Alger was to sign a requisition for the allotment of $29,000 for transports. Secretary Alger intended that his last act should be the signing of the order directing Major Charles Bird, assistant quartermaster, to accompany the transport Thomas to Manila when she was ready. He signed such an order, but the other business was presented a few minutes later.
